Question ID : 1401

Topic Name : AYURVEDA

Given below are two statements:

Statement I: Heavy metal poisoning is the bad outcome of Industrial revolution. During nineteenth century industrial manufacture of several heavy metals increased the risk of exposure to these metals. As time passed several diseases due to the chronic exposure to heavy metals were identified and internationally these metals were banned by legislations so that the exposure to these chemicals may be prevented.

Statement II: Ayurveda utilizes several heavy metals as medicine and are given in small doses after processing. Heavy metals containing medicines are found to be very useful for several chronic diseases including cancer. Ayurveda uses these heavy metals after thorough purification which makes these metals more biologically acceptable. Hence, industrial regulations regarding controlling Ayurvedic heavy metal preparations like bhasma are not necessary.
