INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON RECENT ADVANCEMENT IN HERBAL DRUG RESEARCH (IC-RAHDR-2026)

Organized By: Department of Dravyaguna, Faculty of Ayurveda, Institute of Medical Sciences, Banaras Hindu University

1- 3 NOVEMBER 2026, AT PROF. K.N. UDUPA AUDITORIUM, IMS, BHU, VARANASI

About the Conference

Ayurveda, the traditional Indian system of medicine, remains one of the world's most ancient yet living medical traditions, grounded in a comprehensive understanding of health that integrates physical, psychological, philosophical, ethical, and spiritual health. While the Western medical system has advanced through validated research and modern technology, Ayurveda still holds vast untapped potential, particularly in the areas of pharmacology, pharmacokinetics, and pharmacovigilance. This conference on Recent Advancements in Herbal Drug Research seeks to foster critical dialogue, collaborative research, and knowledge-sharing to strengthen Ayurveda through a modern scientific lens. It emphasizes the need to validate the foundational principles and therapeutic modalities of Ayurveda using cutting-edge tools from disciplines such as molecular biology, proteogenomics, nanotechnology, bioinformatics, pharmacovigilance, and systems biology. It aims to encourage a robust, evidence-based approach to Ayurvedic medicine while remaining true to its philosophical roots. By promoting translational research and integrative healthcare, the conference hopes to pave the way for new therapeutic innovations that combine tradition with technology. Through keynote lectures, technical sessions, and discussions, this event will provide a vibrant platform for researchers, clinicians, academicians, and policymakers to exchange ideas, present their findings, and shape the future of Ayurveda as a validated and robust health science. There are 10 highly reputed institutions from India and abroad have the joint partner for organising this international event.

About the University

Banaras Hindu University (BHU), located in the sacred city of Varanasi, is a globally acclaimed center of higher education and one of the eight public institutions designated as an Institute of Eminence by the Government of India. Spanning over 1,300 acres of verdant land, BHU is the largest residential university in Asia, home to more than 30,000 students, including around 18,000 living on campus. Established in 1916 by the visionary nationalist Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, the university has evolved into a comprehensive academic hub equipped with extensive teaching and research infrastructure.

The university encompasses six Institutes, 14 Faculties, 144 Departments, four Interdisciplinary Centers, a Constituent Women's College, and three Constituent Schools. It offers a wide spectrum of disciplines, ranging from the humanities and social sciences to science, technology, medicine, fine arts, and performing arts. BHU also features six Centers of Advanced Studies, ten departments under the Special Assistance Program, and several specialized research units, reinforcing its status as a leading institution in academics and innovation.

Renowned for its scenic campus and distinctive architecture, BHU fosters a peaceful and intellectually stimulating environment. Its focus on holistic education, supported by cutting-edge facilities and distinguished faculty, draws students and researchers from across the world. With a strong commitment to excellence, BHU continues to play a vital role in advancing education and research at both the national and global levels.

About the Department

The Department of Dravyaguna at Banaras Hindu University, established in 1927, stands as a pillar of Ayurvedic education and research within the Faculty of Ayurveda, Institute of Medical Sciences (IMS). As one of the foundational departments of traditional Indian medicine, it has continually evolved in both infrastructure and academic scope. The department was elevated to postgraduate status in 1963 and became part of the newly formed IMS in 1971, following the merger of the College of Medical Sciences with the Post Graduate Institute of Indian Medicine.

Housed in a modern, double-storied facility spanning approximately 11,500 sq. ft., the department is equipped with smart classrooms, a dedicated library, conference hall, museum, well-equipped laboratories, and well-appointed faculty chambers, creating a holistic academic environment. It offers comprehensive education and training at undergraduate, postgraduate, and doctoral levels, emphasizing both classical Ayurvedic knowledge and modern scientific interpretation.

The department aims to produce skilled educators, researchers, and practitioners by fostering a critical understanding of medicinal substances, quality control of raw materials, evidence-based validation of Ayurvedic drugs, and conservation of biodiversity. Through the development of digital herbaria, raw drug repositories, and training programs for farmers, gardeners, and traditional healers, it actively contributes to India's green and sustainable future.

Rich in arts, crafts, music, and literature, it has nurtured legends like Pandit Ravi Shankar and Ustad Bismillah Khan. Known for its vibrant temples, silk weaving, Ayurveda, and spiritual legacy, Varanasi remains a living museum of India's ancient traditions, harmoniously blending the sacred with the scholarly.
